The name Nestville Distillery was created by combining the words "NEST" and "VILLE" which is the abbreviation of the word "VILLAGE,,. Combination of these two translates into the name of the village of Hniezdne.

Whisky

“uisge beatha” – water of life, living water

One of the most important reasons to launch Nestville Whisky was high-quality crystal clear water, the analysis of which showed the mineral composition that is particularly suited to whisky production.

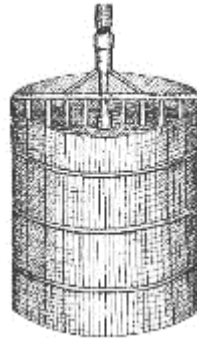

PRODUCTION OF WHISKY

CEREALS

Such grains of cereals like barley, corn (maize) and wheat are used to produce cereal distilled whisky

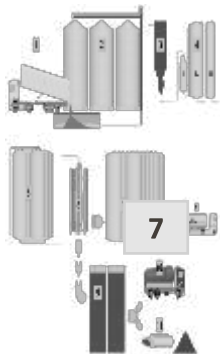

MALTING

Malting house is a building where barley is converted into malt, which is the basic raw material for whisky production. We produce malt in an ancient manual method.

MASHING

As a rule, the smaller the grind of malt / grain / the more alcohol you can get from it. That's why we're grinding it till about one millimeter on two hammer grinders.

DISTILLATION

Whisky distillate is produced in a seven column distillation apparatus guaranteeing a high degree of quality and purity.

MATURATION

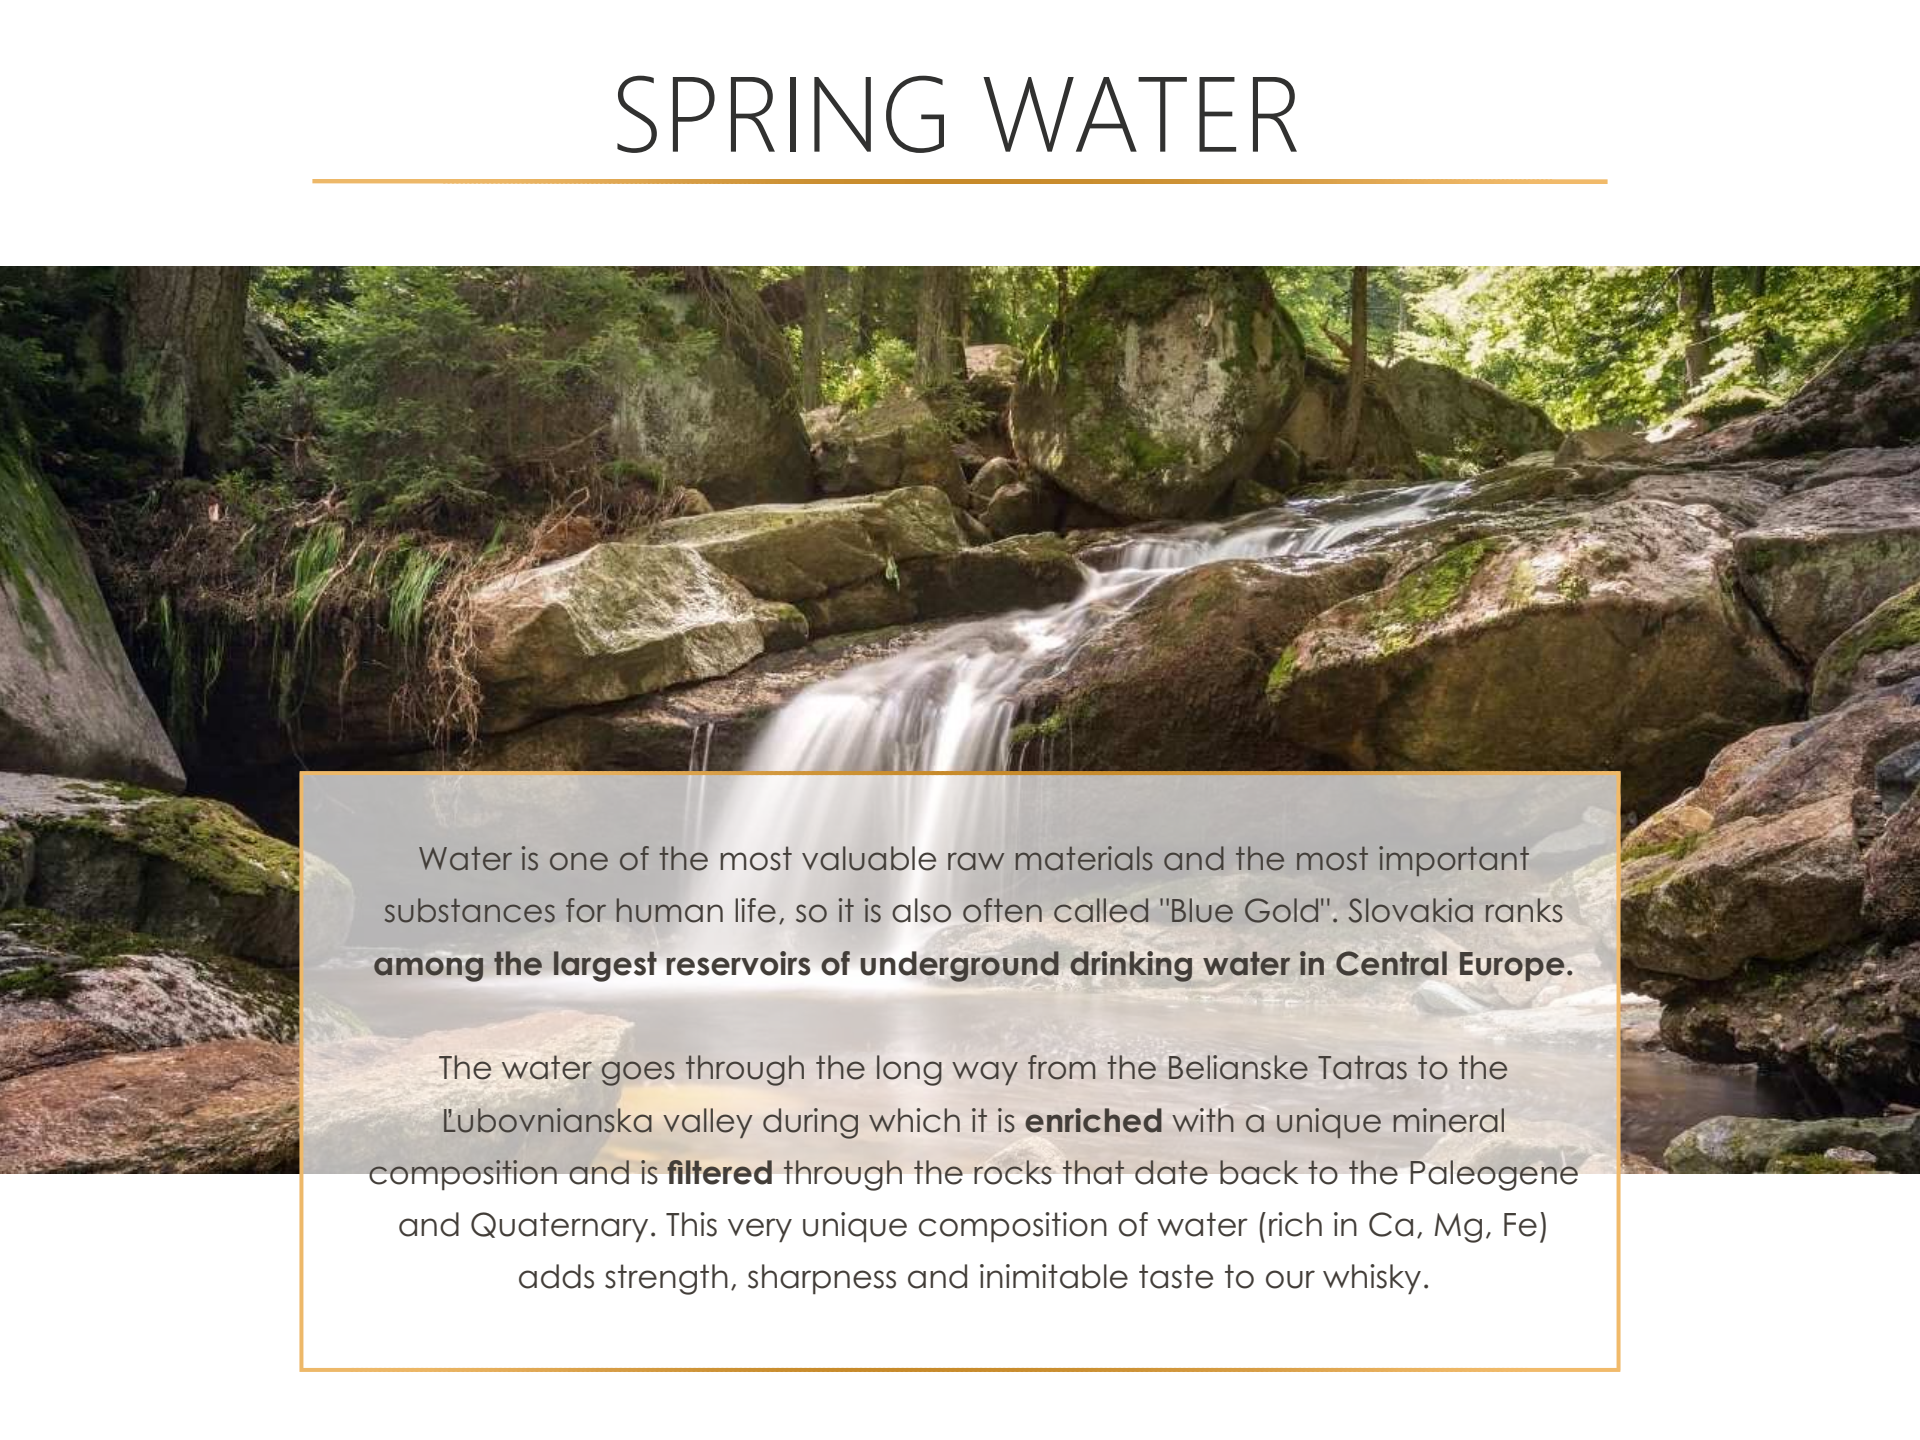

The biggest conversion of Whisky takes place in barrels. Our Whisky ripens in American White Oaks barrels, which are exceptional in their quality and well known for their sweet and brisk character.

NESTVILLE WHISKY

It is a perfect combination of old tradition and modern technology. The result is a very soft, almost smooth whisky, sweetened with corn, with golden brown color.

SPRING WATER

A photograph of a waterfall in a forest. The water is cascading over large, moss-covered rocks. The surrounding area is lush with green trees and foliage. The water appears soft and white due to the motion blur effect.

Water is one of the most valuable raw materials and the most important substances for human life, so it is also often called "Blue Gold". Slovakia ranks among the largest reservoirs of underground drinking water in Central Europe.

The water goes through the long way from the Belianske Tatras to the Ľubovnianska valley during which it is enriched with a unique mineral composition and is filtered through the rocks that date back to the Paleogene and Quaternary. This very unique composition of water (rich in Ca, Mg, Fe) adds strength, sharpness and inimitable taste to our whisky.

CEREALS

The most desired and suitable cereal for whisky production is barley which grows in rugged nature under the peaks of the High Tatras. Its advantage is that it is grown on less fertile soil, relatively low in nitrogen so it is the most suitable for us to produce barley malt. Less nitrogen barley contains, higher content of sugar it has which ferments into alcohol.

MALTING

Malting house is a building where barley is converted into malt which is the basic raw material for whisky production. We produce malt in an ancient manual method that was typical used in second half of the 19th century.

SMOKING

Whisky malt production involves use of hard wood smoke (coming from burning of cherrywood and beechwood) which gives Nestville whisky its distinctive fine smoky aroma.

MATURATION

Whisky is stored in oak barrels made of American white oak and part of European white oak which is exceptional in its quality and is widely used for whisky maturation around the world. American white oak is well known for its sweet and brisk character. Generally, 4 stages of burning insides of barrels are used. We use third and fourth stage, heavily toasted and slightly charred barrels that provide wide spectrum of aromatic and spicy complexities.

During each year of maturation about 4-6% of the spirit is lost through natural evaporation.

This is called the 'angel's share'.

NESTVILLE[®]

WHISKY

Nestville Whisky is very soft, almost smooth whisky. Its sweetness comes mostly from high corn mash bill. Golden brown color is delivered from burned surface of the barrel in which it matures. Nestville whisky leaves a sensuous vanilla flavor with an undertones of malt and corn. It is produced with a special continuous distillation guaranteeing a high degree of purity and quality.

One of the driving forces behind starting production at Nestville Whisky was high-quality and crystal-clear water. Water analysis revealed a mineral composition extremely suitable for whisky production. The water travels a long way from Belianske Tatras to Lubovnians basin thanks to which it's enriched with a unique mineral composition. This unique composition of water, rich in Ca, Mg, Fe, gives our Nestville Whiskey unmistakable taste and originality. The flavour can be enhanced by aging in oak barrels and by smoking malt, but only the water is so specific that it gives whiskey a unique taste and stability. Nestville Whisky Blended is blended from several types of barrels made of white oak with whiskey distillate. The result is unforgettable pleasure from whisky.

Nestville Whisky Black and White Edition is a special edition of Single Barrel Whisky aged in Sherry casks. The first years are aged in American bourbon barrels, and the last years are spent in Spanish sherry wine barrels. The B&W name stands by Bourbon & Wine (wine).

The practice of aging whisky in Sherry casks began in England, where they were quite fond of buying sweet Spanish Sherry in casks. Once the casks were empty, the English had no use for them and burned them, which caught the eye of a certain whisky maker. With visions of cheap barrels, he gave them a try. He was pleasantly surprised by the result, and this started off the tradition of Sherry-ageing whisky. The Sherry cask gives Nestville Whisky B&W a magnificent, singular shade of brown and the unique flavour of fresh ripe fruit.

STAROSPIŠSKÁ DOMÁCA

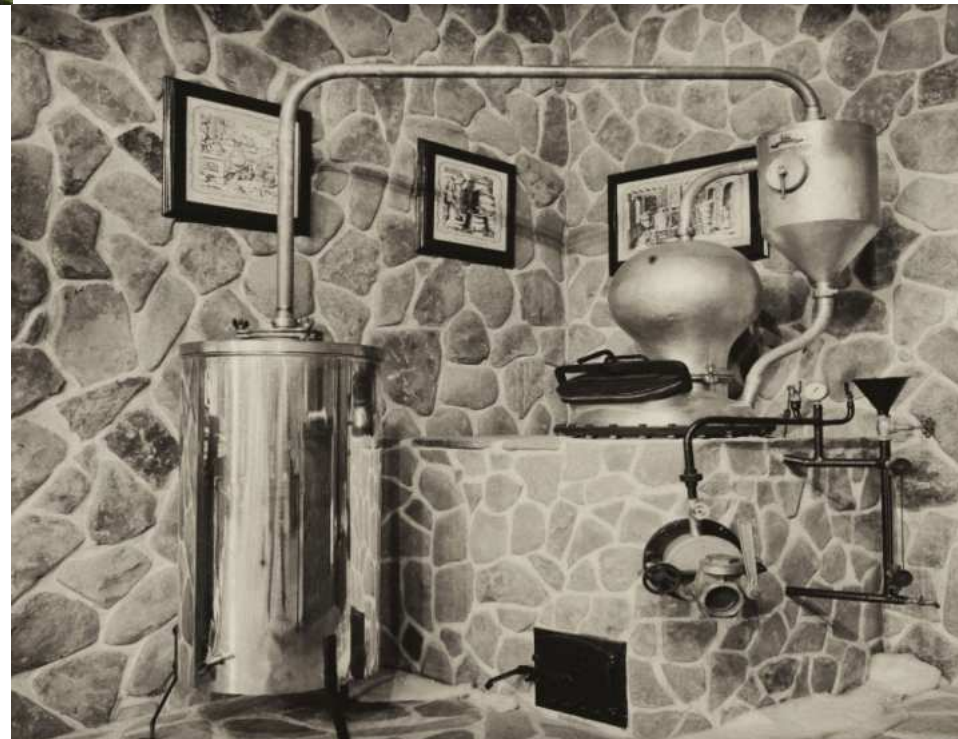

DOMÁCA

The word “home-made” captures the drink's origins and the way our forefathers distilled their traditional spirits – in their homes, as a reward for the hard work they put in every day in the rolling fields of the northern Spiš region.

STAROSPIŠSKÁ

The words “Old Spiš” tell us that it was in the Spiš region that our ancestors came up with their original recipes, which date all the way back to 1756.

Only the finest quality ingredients go into every drop of Starospišská Domáca.

NATURE'S INTIMATE TOUCH

The process of ageing the product in oak casks intensifies the intimate bond the Slovak people feel with the unspoilt nature of the Upper Spiš region.

Besides infusing a delicate amber colour, this process adds extra aromas to the spirit and enriches the original flavour contours with the sweet and woody notes that emanate from the carefully selected casks.
